Hi Peter,

Thanks for your email.

Given my Grandfather's continuing ill health i would like to formally object to this retrospective planning permission application in it's first instance. If this email isn't suffice for such an objection, please let me know the route i should follow.

I would also like to add at this juncture, that this structure has now been erected on the back of the neighbouring property for almost a year, hugely invading my grandfather's privacy and with that eroding the value of his home. It has caused him significant distress and has compounded to his ill health. I will again be seeking a very swift resolution here or i will be left with little choice but to raise legal proceedings against all parties involved, including the council for their lack of action and breach of duty of care in the matter.

I look forward to hearing your timely response.

Kind regards,

Stuart Lee

This intrusive structure causes the privacy of No20 to be compromised through the Kitchen, dining room and upper rear bedroom. There is also now no privacy in 90% of the back garden. this is very obtrusive and I feel detrimental to the value of the property
